“Living our vocation to be protectors of God’s handiwork is essential to life of virtue; it is not an optional or a secondary aspect of our Christian experience.”

(Laudato Si’ 217)

The way we live, consume and use the world’s resources has led to a growing awareness that peace and human flourishing are threatened by our failure to respect and care for creation, and by the exploitation of the earth’s natural resources.

Young people recognise this. They are calling for change and asking how we can hope to build a better future if we ignore the environmental challenges before us and the needs of those who are most vulnerable.

The earth is God’s gift to us, entrusted to our care. It is both our privilege and our responsibility to protect and nurture it.

Let us walk together as we grow in gratitude for the abundance of God’s creation and deepen our commitment to caring for our common home.

We are all pilgrims and our home is the heart of God

This weekend marks the final week of the Collection for the Dublin Diocesan Pilgrimage to Lourdes. Thank you to everyone who has contributed so generously to this worthy cause. Your support is greatly appreciated and helps make the pilgrimage possible for those in need of special assistance.
